MODERNIZATION

by PAUL T. HAAGEN, A.I.A.

A patent was recently granted to three Germans for the production of a blanket of steel, coated by layers of buoyant cork, that would permit it to float on the sea and be used as a mid-ocean landing field.

VENTILATORS

In Foundation Wall

Foundation walls around that portion of the building left unexcavated should have proper and sufficient ventilating openings as a precaution or insurance against the destructive effects of dry rot, fungus, termites and other wood destroyers.

The ventilators should be well-constructed to exclude water and insects, but to allow a free passage of air. The average builder does not install enough of these ventilators. He may use one in the middle of each side of the house but it is much safer to provide additional ventilators so that each corner under the house is subject to positive circulation of air.

Special attention should be given to portions under projecting porches, etc., in which dead air would be pocketed.

Modernize the Kitchen

By PAUL T. HAAGEN

In the kitchen, one of the principal work units of a home, there is probably more work done over a period of the year than in any other room of the house. It is a frequent work center and requires constant attention.

Pleasant surroundings are recognized as a requirement and here should be a built-in clothes chute, package receiver, garbage incinerator if possible, electrical kitchen labor savers and plenty of electric outlets should be installed at the proper place for their connection. Care should be taken to have the sink, work tables and counters at the correct height for the woman who is to use them. Fixtures, cabinets and mechanical devices should be arranged so that the preparation for meals and subsequent clearing away is done easily and over a convenient route.

NO WASTE SPACE

R. C. Hunter, New York Architect, planned this tiny house, with no waste space. The extra bedroom on the first floor is an appreciated feature.

Grouping operations for convenience, we find the following subdivisions of work:

A. Receiving of supplies, (close by the storage center). (Food storage includes refrigerator, cabinets or shelves for staple foods, canned goods, etc., as well as utensils used in preparing foods.)

B. Preparing and mixing food center. (Close to storage center and near to the cleaning center or sink.)

C. Cooking center. (Contains the range cooking utensil used on range shelves for condiments, spices, etc.)

D. Serving center: (Consists of tables, work shelves or counters where dishes for table service may be prepared for use, assembled for serving and filled. This should be near the dining room door.)

E. Cleaning up center: (Includes the sink, dish-washer, garbage disposal, towel racks, cabinet for cleaning materials and storage space for those pans first used at the sink.)

F. Restoring dishes and foods. (Cabinets and shelves for storing dishes, foods and left-overs go back into the storage center.)

Route your kitchen to suit your own convenience.

HOME BUILDING

May Be Built in Stages

Many folks have to build a home a little at a time. They will go as far as the money lasts and build necessary units to start with and this is a very good plan. If you build this way you should approach the problem by designing the entire house first and settling exactly on how you wish to have the house. Then divide the house into as many building stages as seems necessary, taking into consideration economical construction and simplicity of design.

The first stage will naturally include the major costs, since it probably will include all of the plumbing, heating and electrical equipment, excavation, basement, etc., except that part that goes into added units.

Then build the second part at some future time, when convenient, and continue the process until the house is finished.

AUTUMN SEASON PAINTING TIME

Spring remains the most popular season for exterior and interior painting, but many painters believe the reasons for this are psychological rather than practical.

If practical conditions, such as weather, temperature, and humidity, were the only factors involved, painters say, it would probably be found that in most sections there are more days of favorable painting weather in the Autumn season than in Spring.

Another fact underlying the popularity of Spring painting is that the work is done because of an urge to beautify rather than to protect. Paint experts declared that wood in Spring is likely to contain moisture absorbed during the Winter months, while in the Autumn it has been thoroughly dried out by the Summer sun and presents a better condition for painting.

The most commanding reason for painting during the Fall is that of affording protection during the Winter months. Scarcely less important is the need for having home exteriors attractive during the Winter when Nature's colors are no longer present to lend charm to drab buildings.

Home owners who wish to paint their homes before Winter weather starts should launch their work immediately. Funds for the work may be obtained from qualified

Placing the House

Consider the Seasons and Prevailing Winds

By PAUL T. HAAGEN

One of the first things to determine, in planning your house, is whether it will be built close to the street, leaving space in the rear for gardens, or if you desire a deep front yard, getting as far away as possible from the noise and dirt of the street, or whether you will conform to the building line established by adjacent property owners.

It is wise to consider the orientation of your home in relation to the views or vistas from vantage points on porches or from windows, the landscaping or gardening plans and features, the established location of large trees and existing shrubbery, desire for privacy and isolation or an uninterrupted sight of the street, the maximum supply of sunlight for all the rooms and also the prevailing breezes.

CLOSETS

When you remodel your home, be sure to add enough closets so that storage space will be available at all times. Closets can most always be worked into a house, and careful consideration should be given to this convenience unit.

YEAR OF OUR LORD 1939

Out of the 2 billion human beings on earth, 1 1/4 billion are engaged in war either as active belligerents, subjects of belligerents or as active (but not actually fighting) allies. This is in the Year of Our Lord 1939, twenty years after the carefully-engineered pact which was guaranteed to end wars forever.

Twenty years ago the "democracies" to which we point with so much pride today were cocks of the walk. They had beaten the forces of darkness, the enemies of all mankind, the Huns, the Vandals, the Sick Man of Europe, into a shapeless pulp and imposed their own ideal of peace not only upon the enemy, but upon nearly every other nation. Today the only big government that did not subscribe to that peace treaty is the only one worth mentioning as a world power that is not engaged either in defensive war or aggression.

There could be no more severe indictment of the ideals of the democratic victors and their management of affairs than a citation of the present world turmoil. Everything they ought to have done has been neglected by them; everything they should have abhorred they have accomplished. The situation is due to something more awful than mere neglect or inertia. It is due to lack of international morality, lack of direction, lack of everything that should lift the eyes of man above the level of the earth he treads.

We say civilization itself is threatened by four monsters—Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini and Hirohito. To show the lack of vision from which the alleged democracies suffer, look at their stated aims:

About Russian aggression—Nothing.

About Japanese aggression—Nothing.

About Mussolini's past aggressions—Nothing.

About German aggression—Put Hitler out of office.

That is the size of their ambition. Twenty years ago politicians made arrangements to cure a war caused by political ambition, and introduced economic evils they had not intelligence enough to recognize. Now that these evils have plunged more than half the world's inhabitants into war, these same politicians call on the army to help them. Instead of trying to rid their world of the economic evils that created Hitler, they seek to put Hitler out of office SO THEY THEMSELVES MAY REMAIN IN OFFICE.

INDUSTRIALISTS WANT NO PART OF ANOTHER WAR

The National Association of Manufacturers is holding a series of meetings in key cities to try to make it clear to America that industry wants no part of another war.

There is a widespread belief that the United States was somehow jockeyed into the World War by manufacturers and industrialists intent on big profits. It wasn't that simple, as every student of war causes knows. The desire for profits undoubtedly did its share, but so did the desire for jobs, the desire of the farmers for $2 wheat, and the desire of the cotton-growers for export markets.

Nothing is simple, and the causes of a war are among the most complex of all phenomena.

Assuming that anything at all was learned from the World War, certainly industrialists must have learned these things, and their present meetings indicate that they have learned them:

1. The big profits, not only to manufacturers and industrialists, but to farmers, workmen, and everybody else, accrue during neutrality, not during war.

2. War itself always brings fixed prices, high taxes, government restrictions and "interference" to such an extent that the pickings are slimmer than during neutrality.

3. Freedom lost during a war is seldom entirely regained, and the depression which follows a war boom is pretty likely to eat up more than the profits made during a war.

Thus there is no reason to question the entire sincerity of men like C. M. Chester, Tom Girdler, Howard Cooley, and the others who are speaking in the N. A. M.'s neutrality drive. They all know full well that the controls that would be imposed on industry during another war would probably never be relaxed, and that such profits as could be made would undoubtedly be absorbed by taxes and wiped out in the depression almost certain to follow the collapse of a war under the industries geared up to high speed to carry it on.

Whatever may have been the attitude of industrialists toward the World War, they are going to some pains to make crystal clear their attitude toward this one: they want none of it.

AERIAL OUTPOSTS

While most eyes are on Europe, fascinated by the grim and yet somehow unreal drama that is being played there, fortunately certain American eyes are on other matters.

On Kodiak Island, just off the Alaska mainland, and at Sitka, two air bases are getting under way under contracts totaling $12,739,000, while near San Juan, Puerto Rico, dirt is already flying on the naval air base where $8,475,000 is being dumped into protection of the Caribbean. At San Juan the army is also establishing its first new department in 40 years.

On European affairs there is considerable variation of opinion in America. But on the determination to defend the Americas from any sort of aggression whatever, there is no division. The last session of Congress voted $63,000,000 for new air and submarine bases in the Pacific and Atlantic. Unless the European crisis is settled in some way which promises peace to the world, it is clear that such defenses will be extended rather than contracted. The Americas menace no one, but they are determined to hold their own at any cost, be it 63 times $63,000,000.

1202 TAX COLLECTORS

The city of Salisbury, North Carolina, is not a large city, only about 17,000 at the last census. But it has 1202 tax collectors.

These are not full-time government employees, however. They are just employees of 252 retail stores who, every time they punch the cash register, record not only a sale but a tax collection.

A few years ago this would not have been true. Real estate carried the burden of local taxation. But the hidden tax, or sales tax, whose gentle tribute is taken almost unnoticed 24 hours of every day, is responsible for this change.

This estimate of Salisbury's tax collectors, made by Mrs. Melville Muckelstone of the National Consumers' Tax Commission, would be true in similar degree of every city in the country. It shows how heavily local and state governments have come to lean on the one form of taxes which most directly destroys purchasing power—the sales tax.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Finland was not in the original human-barter deal between Stalin and Hitler. Subjugation of those happy isolated people was a Russian afterthought.

This, at least, has been the conclusion transmitted by our diplomatic representatives to officials here, and it is an all-important point, upon which the world could turn.

In fact, it has aroused strategic speculation as to whether Von Ribbentrop's head may not be the next to roll in the Hitler basket. If the Hitler foreign minister who made the trade in European flesh with Russia is responsible for letting Stalin get control of the Baltic in this way, he has certainly laid his head on the block.

Trying to figure Russian purposes is the main desk sport of the inner circle now. Authorities have some bits of inside data but nothing much more conclusive than you have read.

Some officials take the stretched view that Russia may have had a secret deal with Britain and France from the start to head Hitler into the noose he now occupies. They cite the Russian-British trade agreement and some things they have heard particularly from radical quarters here and abroad. But they are probably too credulous.

Preponderant belief is that Russia is acting for Russia only. Stalin has found a new way to work for the world revolution. The bases he has seized give him Baltic control which will bring Sweden, Norway and Denmark up to the border of his sphere of influence and eventual control. He is playing for the defeat of both sides in the war so that he may accomplish what the Third International failed to accomplish by under-mining.

At a dinner party at the British embassy a British attaché induced guests to write down the following names in a straight vertical line: Mussolini, Hitler, Chamberlain, Daladier, Which Wins?

The answer is the third letter of each word, read vertically.

Finland can't fight. She would be an easier conquest for the Reds than Poland was for the Germans. The Finns have 125,000 men in three divisions, one cavalry brigade and a tank company; two coastal defense battalions, five submarines and 150 airplanes including 50 seaplanes.

This is a pitiful force even against such inefficient might as Russia is able to muster. Barren tundra and lake regions of the north would not be serious obstacles.

Most of the inside dope here naturally comes from the British, but even discounting its source, there appears no reason for doubt that the German airplane has not yet proved itself equal to the British battleship. Upon that one point, outcome of the war may hinge.

Twenty-four German bombers comprised the largest air squadron used by Hitler against the British fleet (the figure has never before been published.) This squadron came upon several British cruisers one day this week. The engagement resulted in loss of four or more bombers and no heavy damage to any of the surface ships. At least no ships were sunk.

What will happen if Hitler next sends over 100, 200, or 300 bombers to attack the ships in a straight line may be a different story. This is the test the British confidently expect to meet next.

Meanwhile their blockade control of the North Sea is challenged only by scouting ventures of German cruisers, too wary to bring on a general engagement.

Incidentally the British version of the failure of the German air attack on the Ark Royal was the true one. The vessel was not sunk as claimed by the Germans. Authorities here did not know the American naval attaché at London subsequently attended religious services on the Ark Royal until they read the press dispatch given out by the British ministry of information. They confirmed it directly.

Incidentally this trick of the British to show the world its version was correct, is the sole outstanding feat of British propaganda to date.

Soviet ex-spy Krivitsky's testimony that the Reds have men in both our army and navy is apparently true enough but is not wor-

YESTERDAY: Convinced they have come to the University for a purpose and that Michael is holding out on her, Tuck decides to investigate. She invents a pretext for calling on Mrs. Murchison, who formerly lived in their house.

Chapter Seven

FEMINE CURIOSITY
"I thought I left nothing in the house," said Mrs. Murchison. "Just this book," Tuck said. "I didn't think the book was important—perhaps it had belonged to your maid. But it had in it a lovely carved ivory bridge pencil for a marker, and I thought you might not like to lose it."

There was a tinge of hot color at the base of Mrs. Murchison's throat as she took "The Bartered Bride" from Tuck's hands. "Thank you for the pencil," she said. "My maid, yes."

And this pipe, Tuck went on. "Your husband is as devoted to his old pipes as mine is..." she stopped.

Mrs. Murchison had dropped the book. Both hands were at her heart. She was staring at the pipe in Tuck's hand with some terrible surprise in her face.

"The pipe—he has had it studying in Germany."

"Then I'm glad I found it," Tuck said equably.

The woman looked up. "Where have you found it?" she said tensely. "It is never out of my hand."

"I found it in the little drawer just under the leaf for the typewriter—in the big desk in the study, Mrs. Murchison," Tuck replied. "I am sorry if your husband has been searching for it."

She still held the pipe out but the woman did not touch it. Tuck glanced at her sharply.

The woman caught the glance. She moistened her dry lips and straightened her shoulders. "Thank you for it, then," she said more composedly. Tuck took it from Tuck's outstretched hand and stepped back. Tuck took the hint, said goodby and ran down the steps.

"Now, what's that all about?" she said to herself. The woman's attitude was certainly strange.

That afternoon, when Bunny came out from a half-day relieving at the office, she had something more to add to the picture.

"Tuck almost bursting to tell her of the events of the morning, had gone to the University to meet her and as they walked back through the dim green woodland path had told her of the affair of the pipe."

"She had a terribly frightened look, Bunny—surprised and frightened. Now why? Why should the sight of an old pipe your husband had left behind, even if he had had it ever since he was a student in Germany—why should that upset a woman so?"

"I don't think it was the pipe that upset her," Bunny said slowly. "I think it was the fact of your having it."

"What do you mean, Bunny?" "Who I thought I'd do a little sleuthing too. So I telephoned the University and asked for Dr. Murchison—" she broke off suddenly, and looked at Tuck. "You remember, Tuck, that Higgins was quite willing to tell where Mrs. Murchison was, and where the brother was, but when it came to Dr. Murchison himself he wiggled and squirmed?"

"Yes—and Michael, right after he had finished saying that he didn't know a thing about the Murchisons," asked where Dr. Murchison was! How did he know Murchison was a doctor? That's what made me suspect Michael! Bunny—that's right. He's the man the mystery's about."

"What did they say at the University?"

"Said he was off on a business trip and they didn't have his address. So I phoned his wife."

"Bunny—Bunny stopped, pulled off her hat and lifted her face to the cool evening breeze—"Well—I thought I'd better be a little wary—so I said I was the Customer Office, and had a box of books for Dr. Murchison and that there was duty on them."

"Go on, Bunny—you're exasperating."

"Yes, dear. And I asked for Dr. Murchison's address to notify him."

"And what did she say?"

"Well, she waited a little while before she answered me, and then she said she'd tell me herself."

"Oh," Tuck said disappointedly. "I thought maybe..." I didn't know..."

"Me too," Bunny agreed. "But wait a minute, I said, 'How soon can you let us know? Because if he doesn't clear them in a week we've got to send them back.'"

"And she said, very slowly—'Send them back then. I cannot get an answer in a week.'"

Nocturnal Prowling
That night, falling to sleep late, Tuck dreamed of walking past a gigantic book-cruiser, which nudged menacingly and then fell suddenly across her feet. When she struggled to dislodge it she awoke, to find Agamemnon purring happily and digging his knees into the eiderdown over her knees.

She reached down, slapped his paws, patted his head and composed herself to sleep again when an idea struck her which awakened her like a dash of ice water.

What was the cat doing here? She remembered distinctly putting him out herself after all the doors and windows were locked; and yet here he was!

With a thumping heart she reached out cautiously and turned on the little lamp beside her bed. Michael was sleeping peacefully with his back turned, and she had to cross three feet of dark floor before she could waken him.

She put her hand tightly over his mouth. "Michael!"

"Michael! Wake up, quick!" She drew her feet up suddenly and knelt on the bed.

He opened an eye, scowled at her and turned over.

She grasped his shoulder and covered his mouth again. "Michael, you must get up, quick,"

she whispered into his ear. "It's burglars! I'm scared!"

"Burglars!" he mumbled under her hand. The exclamation point was in his eyes.

"The cat's in, and we put him out!"

He pushed her hand away, and sat up. "He must have got in a window."

"You know perfectly well none of the downstairs windows are open. I'm sure there's somebody in the house!"

With a comical look of surrender he seized his dressing gown, thrust his feet into his slippers at the side of his bed, and started for the door. Tuck followed.

He turned and frowned at her. "What are you coming for?"

"Do you expect me to stay here alone? I should say not! And don't make so much noise, Michael, they'll hear us."

"Tuck, you've let that fool kid put notions into your head," he said. Nevertheless he lowered his voice to a whisper as they went quietly down the wide staircase to the living room.

The Study
He tried the front door opening off the little hall. It was locked. With Tuck at his heels he crossed the room and pushed at the glass doors into the dining room, but they did not swing open at his touch as usual. He pushed. They were solid.

"What's the matter with the darn thing?" he muttered. "Turn on the light, Tuck."

But she did not obey. She leaned over and pressed her ear instead to the crack of the door, listening intently. Michael could not see her expression in the dim moonlight. She straightened up suddenly.

"It's the study," she whispered tensely. "They've locked this door on the other side to keep us out."

"You can hear something?" he stared at her incredulously.

"Listen!"

He put his ear to the door. Silence. Then, not in the dining room but in the study beyond, he heard a small, subdued tapping, which stopped, began again, went on steadily, stopped again.

Tuck clung to his arm tightly. "There is someone, Michael!"

"It must be Bunny," he whispered. "Of course it isn't Bunny. Don't be stupid, Michael—what are we going to do?"

"I want to know what the devil this is all about," he said. He turned and ran softly up the front stairs to the landing, then down the servant's stair to the kitchen.

Tuck after him like a little shadow. There was another glass door between the dining room and the study, and there was a door, of course, from the kitchen into the dining room.

That door was locked! Michael wasted no time now, but dashed to the outside kitchen door. He turned the key in the lock and pulled the door open. Immediately the quiet of the night was shattered by a terrific metallic clatter and bang as some object that had been propped upon the door knob fell to the floor.

"Well, damn it!" Michael said bitterly.

He jumped from the edge of the porch and raced toward the corner of the house with Tuck still at his heels. The moon was going down, and only the faintest gray light lay over the garden. The sundial stood out in the center, holding on its white surface a certain glimmer; as they reached the house that glimmer was for a moment obscured. It was as if a shadow passed before it and was gone. But Michael, intent only on the study door, did not notice.

That door, reached through the sun porch, was closed, but yielded instantly to Michael's touch. He swung it open and stepped back against the porch wall, holding Tuck beside him. Nothing happened.

"Of course he'd be gone," Michael said disgustedly. He peered off through the darkness.

"Michael, you mustn't go after him! It's no use—it's too dark out there, and you don't know where he's gone. He—he might have a gun, Michael!"

"It isn't any use, all right," Michael conceded grudgingly. He reached around the corner of the doorway and switched on the lights, waiting for a moment before he looked into the room.

It was empty.

Canton Church With "Priceless Organ" Destroyed by Fire

Canton, Ill. —(AP)—The Canton Congregational church, one of the oldest in Illinois, was destroyed by fire yesterday despite efforts of firemen from Canton, Lewistown and Farmington. The Rev. E. G. Davis said the building was valued at $75,000 and the pipe organ was "priceless," the church was built in 1842. Fire Chief Robert Essex said the fire was caused by defective wiring.

His Second Address

The program was offered to the American people in Lindbergh's second radio speech on the United States and its relations to the European war. It had been heralded as a clarification of his speech of Sept. 15, in which he broke his long self-imposed rule of silence to warn America that if the United States enters the war for democracy abroad the nation might end by losing it at home.

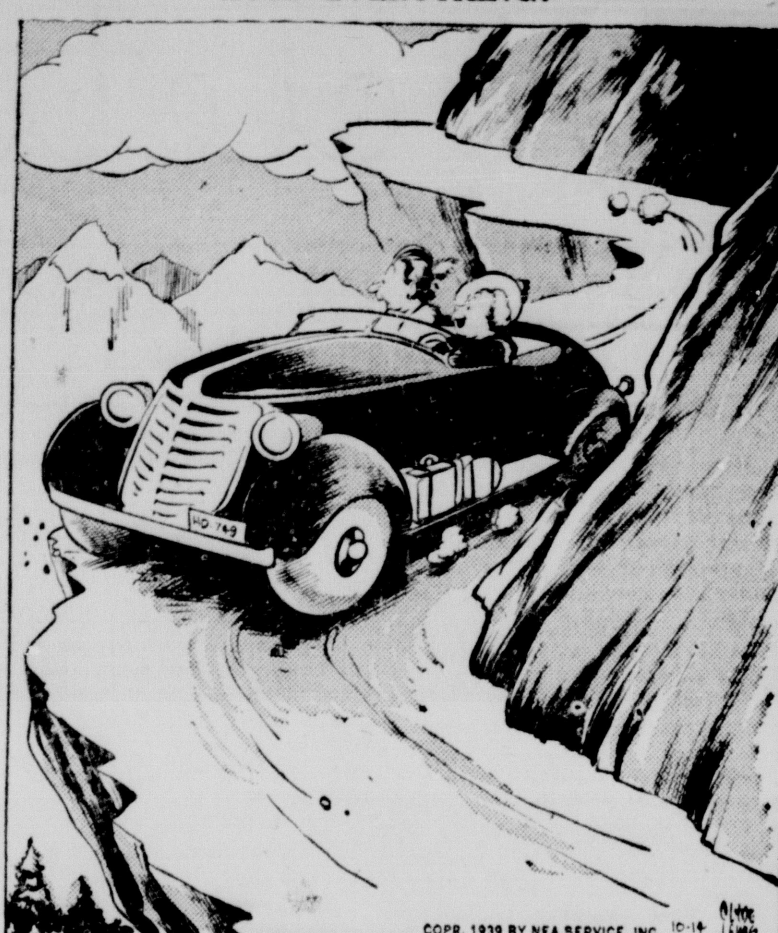

The firm Lindbergh declaration against repeal of the arms embargo, which repeal is advocated by President Roosevelt, came as a surprise to official Washington. It had been expected in administration circles that he would yield to the pressure put upon him by the embargo repealers and use the pretext of clarifying the first speech, in which he made no mention of the neutrality act, to assert he had been misinterpreted as advocating its retention.

Discusses Each Argument

Instead he unequivocally came out against arms embargo repeal, taking up and dismissing one by one the principal arguments of its advocates.

By this action, his friends said, he gave another exhibition of the cool courage which carried him across the Atlantic in the first flight from the North American continent to Europe.

HOLD EVERYTHING!

"I do not believe that repealing the arms embargo would assist democracy in Europe, because I do not believe this is a war for democracy," he said. "This is a war over the balance of power in Europe. The more munitions the armies obtain, the longer the war goes on, and the more devastated Europe becomes, the less hope there is for democracy."

If the purpose of repeal is to help one side to overcome the other, Lindbergh asked, why should the people of the United States mislead themselves by talk of neutrality?

"A Step Toward War"

"Those who advance this argument should admit openly that repeal is a step toward war," he declared, adding: "The next step would be the extension of credit, and the next would be the sending of American troops."

To the argument that America should make a profit and build up its own industries by selling munitions abroad, Lindbergh said America has not yet reached a point where its people would wish to capitalize on the destruction and death of war.

"This (the selling of munitions) would not only implicate us in the war, but would make us partly responsible for the devastation," he argued. "The fallacy of helping to defend a political ideology, even though it be somewhat similar to our own, was clearly demonstrated to us in the last war. Through our help that war was won, but neither the democracy nor the justice for which we fought grew in the peace that followed our victory."

The bond with Europe is one of race, and not political ideology, Lindbergh said in pointing out that the United States fought a European army to establish democracy in this country. He said the mission of this country is to preserve the European race because racial strength is vital, whereas politics is a luxury.

We hope Paul Potts has better luck with his national football predictions than we have had so far this week end with the prep school affairs. In games last night we were snubbed by four out of six. ## PLAN BENEFIT GAME

A benefit game will be played at Polo for Harold Kline who suffered a broken leg in the first Rock River conference game with Rock Falls. The alumni will meet the high school football team at 7:30 Tuesday evening on the Marco Polo field. Members of the senior class are selling tags for admission and the public would be supporting a worthy cause in turning out in full strength for this game. Kline, a senior and center on the squad, has been prevented from further competition this year with the team. Russell Dennis is captain of the alumni team, a former halfback on the school varsity.

Around the Camps

PURDUE'S AMBITIONS

Minneapolis, Oct. 14—(AP)—Purdue's Boilermakers had ambitions of jolting the Western Conference title race by tripping up the University of Minnesota today in the opening conference test of the season for both schools.

The Gophers, defending their conference championship, have copped the crown four times in the last five years and haven't lost a loop tilt at home since 1932. Their hopes darkened today, however, with the word that Bill Johnson, veteran end, had turned up with a sprained ankle and might not be able to start.

Game time is 2 P. M. (CST) with a crowd of 35,000 expected.

CORREAVANT ON SPOT

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 14—(AP)—Northwestern and Ohio State squared off in Buckeye stadium today for their opening contest of the Western Conference campaign and the spotlight was focused fully on Bill De Correvont, tow-headed, fleet-footed halfback for the invading Wildcats.

The 20-year-old speedster, most publicized sophomore of the year, hoped to use the game as his springboard to Big Ten fame.

In 17 previous engagements the Bucks have won 11, lost five and tied one, the deadlock coming last year.

Rain and cold weather, promised for the contest, were expected to hold the crowd down to around 55,000. Game time was 1 P. M. (CST).

SURPRISING HAWKEYES

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 14—(AP)—Michigan's Wolverines, rated one of the most powerful teams in the Western Conference open the Big Ten portion of its football schedule today against a surprising Iowa eleven. A crowd of 30,000 was predicted.

Iowa pinned its hopes for victory on Nile Kinnick, elusive pass-throwing halfback, while Michigan looked to its well rounded backfield and a smooth-working veteran line. The Hawkeyes shot into football prominence with a Dick Merriwell finish that subdued Indiana 32 to 29 last Saturday.

It was the eighth game between the schools, Michigan has won six, tied one and lost one. The kickoff was scheduled for 1 P. M. (CST).

MUSTANGS VS. IRISH

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 14—(AP)—Southern Methodist university's pass-conscious Mustangs faced a resourceful Notre Dame eleven today in one of the top intersectional clashes of the day.

The Mustangs made their last appearance here in 1930 in the first game played in Notre Dame's new stadium, when the Irish defeated the southwest eleven, 20-14. A game no less thrilling was in prospect this time, pitting the invaders' tricky aerial formations against Irish power and precision.

Neither team has lost a game this season, although the Mustangs played a 7-7 tie with Oklahoma.

ARMY FAVORED

New York, Oct. 14—(AP)—Columbia, which lost its opening game to Yale, and Army, held to two close scores by Furman and Centre, clashed before an expected crowd of 35,000 at Baker Field today. It was the seventh game of a series which began in 1899 and has produced a number of spectacular contests. The Cadets, possessing greater reserve strength, were favored to gain their third victory of the series.

TOO MUCH FOR ILLINI?

Los Angeles, Oct. 14—(AP)—Southern California and University of Illinois battle today for the first time in three years, with a crowd of 60,000 expected.

Southern Cal's bulky line and array of backfield performers was conceded to be too much for the Illini, who were held to a scoreless tie by Bradley Tech in their only game this season.

PITT'S HOMECOMING

Pittsburgh, Oct. 14—(AP)—A forecast of rain threatened Pitt's highly vaunted aerial attack in today's intersectional battle against Duke before an expected 50,000 homecoming fans.

The betting fraternity gave Duke a slight edge, but it might be even money by game time if weather is favorable for a free-scoring game between the unbeaten rivals.

The invading Blue Devils were in top shape while Panther hopes suffered a blow with announcement that veteran Tackle Ted Konefsky would be out of the starting lineup due to a knee injury.

NAVY STRENGTHENED

Baltimore, Oct. 14—(AP)—Navy's heavy defensive line went up against Dartmouth's offensive drive today in the first football game between the two schools since Navy won 13-6 in 1929.

Of Major Events

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 14—(AP)—Taking them strictly on the basis of the crowds they are expected to attract, Ohio State-Northwestern, Southern California-Illinois, Pittsburgh-Duke and Tulane-Fordham were today's biggest college football battles.

With two intersectional "natural" and a battle between two of the highest-rated teams in the powerful Big Ten conference, it's likely that at least three of these contests will live up to advance billings. Illinois hardly seemed a match for Southern California, leading candidate for Pacific Coast Conference honors and the Rose Bowl.

But every section can offer serious competition for interest, especially in the Big Ten, generally rated as the nation's No. 1 football group. While Northwestern's Wildcats, upset by Oklahoma last week, were trying to redeem themselves against the mighty Buckeyes, Minnesota, another upset victim, clashed with Purdue; Michigan tested its strength against a surprisingly good Iowa team, and Indiana faced Wisconsin. And to keep the conference from having a monopoly on mid-western games, Notre Dame took on Southern Methodist in a game that was expected to draw 45,000 fans.

In The South

The south, which has been in the spotlight all season because of its intersectional triumphs, brought its biggest battles down where the home folks can see this week. In addition to Fordham's effort to make up for the Alabama defeat against Tulane, North Carolina played New York University, Georgia tackled Holy Cross, and Louisiana State faced Rice, from the Southwest Conference.

Other major intersectional clashes on the national program included Harvard-Chicago, Carnegie Tech-Case, Texas Christian-Temple, Detroit-Catholic, Richmond-Rutgers, Colorado-Kansas State, Kansas-Colorado State and Villanova-Texas A. and M.

For the stay-at-homes, outstanding attractions were Navy-Dartmouth, Yale-Pennsylvania, Princeton-Cornell and Columbia-Army in the east's unofficial "Ivy League", as well as Syracuse-Georgetown and Colgate-Bryn Mawr. The Big-Six conference clash between Nebraska and Iowa State, and Marquette-Michigan State, and Missouri-Washington University were good "side" attractions in the mid-west.

Several "Breathers"

The south had a number of "breathers" listed for big teams, but there still were the Wake Forest-North Carolina State, Virginia Tech-William and Mary and Furman-Citadel Southern Conference games, Auburn and Mississippi State in the Southeastern conference, and Vanderbilt-V. M. L. Maryland-Virginia and Mississippi-Centenary on the outside.

Arkansas and Baylor met in the only Southwest Conference clash while Texas tackled Oklahoma from the Big Six and Texas Tech, a major "independent" eased off.

William and Mary and Virginia, was strengthened by the return of Suede Hansen at right end and Lou Gray at fullback. Dartmouth has run up 75 points in defeating St. Lawrence and Hampden Sydney.

Scouts said it was a fast team but lacking in reserve power.

BADGERS VS. HOOSIERS
Madison, Wis., Oct. 14—(AP)—The weatherman provided the first real dash of football weather as Wisconsin met Indiana today in the Badgers' opening game of the Big Ten conference.

Big George Paskvan of La Grange, Ill., nominated to fill Howie Weiss' shoes, was ready to go at fullback for Wisconsin for the first time, after being held back with injuries.

Indiana was expected to flash a passing attack with Herold Hursh, 170 pound junior from Middletown, O., doing the pitching. The Hoosiers, nosed out by Iowa last week, have completed 28 of 50 passes to date.

ON THE MIDWAY

Chicago, Oct. 14—(AP)—Invading the midwest for the second time in its football history, Harvard squared off with the University of Chicago today on Stagg Field in an intersectional game.

Harvard, 20-0 victor over Bates a week ago, was a top-heavy favorite to lambast the Maroons, who lost to Beloit two weeks ago, then defeated Wabash last week.

Chicago faced its eastern foe without two regulars, tackle Dave Wiedemann and fullback Bob Howard, who were injured in the Wabash game.

against Arizona Teachers of Flagstaff, Utah, leading light of the Rocky Mountain Big Seven, sought another victory at Brigham Young's expense.

On the West Coast, Oregon, conference leader, against California was about the biggest game as U. C. L. A., another title contender, faced Stanford's rather ordinary team and Washington played Washington State.

Both the grade school and high school faculties met at the school the evening of Oct. 4. These periodic meetings are for the purpose of discussing some of our common problems as teachers.

Miss Lyford gave a well-prepared talk on grading standards and explained the new system of grading to be used in the high school this year. The desire is to standardize our grading scale in such a definite way that the grades of all teachers will be similar in meaning.

Miss Boning spoke on the subject "Learning to Read." She explained modern methods and discussed the type of up-to-date materials now in use. She showed how the phonetic and word theories of learning to read can be co-ordinated to get improved results.

After a period of open discussion the faculty adjourned to the home economics room where several of the advanced students of that department had prepared very delightful refreshments.

By sharing ideas teachers can improve methods and can grow in a professional way.

Awards were given for the costume, which made the headlines; Betty Shaulis prizes. The prizes were a pair of long black stockings for the girl and red bandana and furry mittens for the boy. They were requested to wear them the following Monday to school.

Refreshments were then enjoyed. They consisted of taffy apples and fruit punch. Newspaper napkins were used and waitresses wore newspaper caps and aprons.

Convention of W. C. T. U.

On Thursday, October 12, 1939, the annual convention of the Lee County W. C. T. U. was held in the Baptist church in Amboy. The meeting was called to order by the county president, Mrs. Elizabeth Blocher of Franklin Grove. The program opened with the singing of "America, the Beautiful." Devotion was led by the county vice president, Mrs. S. L. Cover. Two vocal numbers were rendered by Miss Margaret Cox, accompanied by Dick Dewitt, both of Amboy. These were much appreciated.

County recording secretary, Miss Carrie B. Swartz, not being able to be present, Mrs. Lillian Derr acted in her place and read a report of the convention of 1938, which was held in Dixon. The county treasurer, Mrs. Jessie Cover of Amboy, gave the financial report. She reported ninety-three members paying dues for the year just closing, which is several more than the year before. The salute to the flag was led by Mrs. C. P. Tibbets who is the state director of temperance and missions, has recently moved to Dixon and the convention felt honored to have her present some facts concerning the W. C. T. U. organization. She stressed the increase by 22,000 new members of the W. C. T. U. the past year, also over 2,000 honorary members. The convention was happy to welcome Mrs. Tibbets to the county and to have her share her experience and enthusiasm for the work. It will be a great help to Lee county W. C. T. U.

Reports of the local unions were given and all showed considerable activity with much more planned for the future. The election of officers was then held with the following results: president, Mrs. Elizabeth Blocher of Franklin Grove; vice president, Mrs. S. L. Cover of Franklin Grove; recording secretary, Mrs. C. P. Tibbets of Dixon; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Sunday of Franklin Grove; treasurer, Rev. Helen Peters of Dixon. Mrs. Blocher, the president-elect, spoke words of encouragement and hoped to accomplish in the county particularly along the lines of education of youth and Christian citizenship.

Mrs. Archie Kline of Dixon sang a beautiful solo, "The Christ of the Cross," and Mrs. Mary Strook, a former county president, led the noon-time prayer. The convention then adjourned to the dining room of the church, where a bountiful picnic dinner was enjoyed.

Mrs. Jennie LeGard of Chicago, state director of publicity, had arrived shortly before and the convention indeed felt honored to have two state officers as its guests.

The convention was called to order for the afternoon session by the vice president, Mrs. S. L. Cover. The meeting opened with singing "Lead On, O King Eternal." Devotions were led by Rev. W. H. Grubb, pastor of the Amboy Congregational church. The convention voted to send their president, Mrs. Blocher, as delegate to the state convention in Bloomington, October 24-27. A solo, "I Shall Not Pass Again," sung by Mrs. Roy Long of Amboy, was much enjoyed. Miss Callie Morgan of Dixon gave a short talk on the subject "The Future of the W. C. T. U.," which was very interesting. She had many pictures of Miss Willard and records of her activities which were exceedingly interesting and drew much attention at the close of the program.

The speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. LeGard, then gave an address which brought to those present much of encouragement and help. She spoke of the special command given to women of the tomb of the Master on the resurrection morning—"Go tell," and again at the time of the temperance crusade of Christian women in 1873 and 1874 when again that special command came to women: "Go on down through the years to the present time, when, through the stressing of 'What alcohol is and what it does,' the W. C. T. U. is striving to carry out that word of 'Go tell.'"

She told of the national W. C. T. U. convention which she had very recently attended at Rochester, N. Y. This began with a "pilgrimage" to Churchville, the little town where Frances Willard was born in western New York. The trip was made by bus and the schools were all closed, flags were flying from all the houses along the way while at many places children were lined up with waving banners with the words "Welcome W. C. T. U." At 11 a. m. Thursday, Sept. 28, exactly one hundred years from the day and hour when Frances Willard first opened her eyes on this old world, this group of delegates from the national W. C. T. U., the organization to which she devoted her life, passed through this room, sacred because of its contribution to humanity. It must have been a most impressive experience for that group of women, banded together to carry out the work she left to be done when she passed on.

Mrs. LeGard's report of the later sessions of the convention, the reports from the states, the professional pageant of the world and the memorial service to the addresses by the world president, Mrs. Ella A. Boole; the national president, Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith; Bishop Oxnian of the Methodist church on the subject "A Date With the World;" and Sam Morris, a well known radio broadcaster on temperance, was very interesting and inspiring. The convention adjourned with all joining hands and singing "Beulah Land That Binds," and the benediction.

Americanism Is Being Given Emphasis in School

Chicago, Oct. 14—(AP)—Europe's war has resulted in an upsurge of emphasis on Americanism and neutrality in the schools, a survey by the Associated Press disclosed today.

Among steps taken by educators as a direct result of the conflict were these:

The appointment by Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of Chicago schools, of a committee to study the public school curricula to "determine at which points the American way of life can be stressed."

An admonition from Superintendent of Schools Milton Potter of Milwaukee that teachers maintain a neutral attitude in classroom discussions of the war.

A declaration by President James Marshall of New York City's board of education, cautioning the 39,000 public school teachers of the metropolis to observe neutrality.

"No culture or learning or language," he said, "is taboo."

Meanwhile a university dean, Dr. Ernest O. Melby of the school of education of Northwestern University, admonished American educators to guard against a "preoccupation with the European war which would leave unsolved our own problems and end with a superficiality as far as long-time educational objectives are concerned."

Sounding what he described as a "warning in this time of crisis" Dr. Melby said:

"The best educational program for America now is one which seeks to teach the democratic way of life through everyday activities of the school."

Ford Sterling, Keystone Chief of Police, Dead

Hollywood, Oct. 14—(AP)—Ford Sterling, police chief of the old Keystone cops, is dead, but the type of comedy he popularized years ago soon may be revived.

Sterling died late yesterday of a heart attack. He had been in a hospital since June, 1938, for treatment of thrombosis. Last August, in an effort to save his life, his left leg was amputated.

Today the film colony, mourning the cheerful actor who was linked with the very beginning of the motion picture industry, applauded reports that the Keystone Comedies, which Sterling, Mack Sennett and Mabel Normand inaugurated, might be revived.

"Hollywood Cavalcade," a motion picture based in part upon Sterling's comedies, was released only this month, and the hilarious Keystone cops sequences proved so popular that studio executives are talking of a new Keystone series.

A native of LaCrosse, Wis., who clowning with a circus and played in vaudeville before entering pictures in company with Miss Normand and Charles Chaplin in 1912, Sterling made more than 100 two-reel comedies during eight years with Sennett.

Audiences last saw him in "Alice in Wonderland." Once wealthy, he had been in difficult financial straits in recent years.

His widow, actress Teddy Sampson, was to decide upon funeral arrangements late today.

Infant Killed, Man Seriously Injured in Traffic Tragedy

Wilmington, Ill., Oct. 14—(AP)—The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Korrell of Centralia, Ill., was killed, and George Kyle, 55, of Centralia, was injured seriously early today when the automobile in which they were riding left highway 66 on a curve and overturned.

Kyle, who was driving the car, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet. Mr. and Mrs. Korrell and a fifth passenger in the car, Virginia Morgan, 15, of Centralia, suffered minor cuts and bruises.

After the car had overturned, it was struck by a machine driven by Walter C. Smith, 49, of Joliet, who was taken into custody by state police and held without charge.

The party of five was returning to Centralia from Joliet, where the Korrells had been visiting Korrell's brother, Howard.

The body of the baby, who was two months old, was removed to a Wilmington mortuary.

Ask Pension Increase for Veterans Over 40

Automatic increase in the pensions of disabled veterans, after they reach the age of 40 years, would be provided by enactment of legislation as demanded by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

As mandated by the recent national encampment at Boston, the V. F. W. shortly will institute efforts to obtain legislation to provide that a veteran now receiving compensation for service-connected disability, will be entitled to the addition of 10 percent of his basic rating for each additional five years of age, beginning with his 40th birthday.

The current pension and compensation schedule is based on an average age of 31 years for World War veterans, according to the 1921 schedule. The veterans now average 47 years of age and for the last 15 years employment possibilities have decreased with the increasing age of the would-be worker.

The resolution, as adopted by the V. F. W., provides that the total sum of pension, including the desired additions, should not exceed the statutory provision in any case of total disability. It provides for a percentage increase commensurate with the rated degree of disability. For instance, a World War veteran at 40, rated at 10 per cent disabled, would receive $11 monthly. If rated at 90 per cent disabled, he would receive $99 monthly.

Peacetime veterans, for similar degrees of disability, would receive $6.60 to $49.50 monthly, respectively.

Jury in GMC Trial Is Permitted to Go Home to Spend the Week End

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 14—(AP)—Contrary to custom, members of a Federal court jury rested at their homes today after the first week of the trial of General Motors Corporation, three affiliated firms and seventeen officials on charges of conspiracy to restrain trade by forcing their dealers to use credit facilities of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

Judge Walter G. Lindley, called back to Chicago by other matters, adjourned court for the week-end yesterday and said that since the trial may last three months the jurors should be allowed to go to their homes. The trial will be resumed Monday.

Fred G. Burger of St. Joseph, Mo., W. A. Wilson of Mantua, O., and E. A. Ackerman of Cleveland were the last of the government witnesses yesterday to testify that their contracts as dealers with General Motors were cancelled because of disputes over financing installment sales.

On cross-examination General Motors attorneys sought to show that the contracts were cancelled for other reasons, such as poor sales records or inadequate capitalization.

7,500 Pumpkin Pies Served to Eureka Crowds

Eureka, Ill., Oct. 14—(AP)—The frost was on the pumpkin early today—but too late to put a chill to the celebration being observed in support of Eureka's claim to being the pumpkin center of the world. The frost didn't have a chance to nip the thousands of pumpkin pies (7,500 of 'em) which were ready for distribution to townspeople and visitors expected for the second day of the festival celebrating a bumper pumpkin harvest.

Officials of the community association, sponsor of the first pumpkin celebration, said they expected a larger crowd today than attended yesterday's program. More than 5,000 persons jammed the town square where Miss Mary Elizabeth Barker, Eureka college student, was crowned queen of the festival.

A dedicatory program at the new high school athletic field also attracted hundreds of persons, including followers of the Saunemin high school football team. The visiting gridders eked out a 7 to 6 victory over Eureka.

Today was not just a round of pumpkin pie. Included on the day's program were other events—a parade, band concert, street dancing and a community ball. To the farmer who has grown the biggest pumpkin, a cash award was given.

There are 2,000 acres of pumpkins in the Eureka farming district, all under contract to a nationally-known canning company. The average yield is 12 tons an acre.

Members of the town's American Legion posts were to start serving the first slices of pie at 1:30 this afternoon at the courthouse square. Officials said "there will be slicing and eating until the last pie is gone."

Witness in Champaign Gambling Case Refuses to Give Testimony

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 14—(AP)—A witness' refusal to testify formed an obstacle today to the prosecution of Ben Durman, one of six defendants in the Champaign vice trials.

Circuit Judge F. B. Leonard will rule when court reconvenes Monday on the state's motion requesting that the witness be compelled to testify.

The witness, first to be called by the state, was Ray Campbell. He said he had decided not to testify on grounds he might incriminate himself.

Prosecutor A. B. Dennis had declared in his opening statement that Campbell would testify he had been employed in a gambling establishment operated by Durman and had received 25 per cent of the profits.

The state's motion to compel Campbell to testify also carried an offer of immunity from prosecution. Roy Cline, defense attorney.

State Plans Bridge on Lincoln Memorial Road

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 14—(AP)—F. Lynden Smith, public works and building director, said today state highway engineers were preparing plans for a bridge over the Sangamon river in Macon county to extend the Lincoln Memorial parkway past the Thomas Lincoln home site to the Mt. Auburn secondary highway.

Such an improvement would provide access from two directions to the site where Abraham Lincoln lived during the winter of 1830. State park officials plan to restore the area, visited annually by hundreds of tourists.
